CHINESE TRANSIT RULE

SUPREME COURT UPHOLDS GOVERNMENT CONTENTION

Pacific Mail Will Have to Return Chinese Intended for Mexico -- Treasury Regulations are Final.

Washington, May 5.—The right of the United States to regulate transit of Chinese through the country and to detain and deport those who do not show good faith in attempting to exercise the transit privilege was upheld by the United States Supreme Court today in two cases. The validity of the exclusion acts, Treasury regulations and the treaty itself was sustained, and it is expressly declared that Chinese have no right to apply for writs of habeas corpus to test the right of the collector of customs to exercise final jurisdiction over transit cases. Every contention made by the Government is upheld and the attack made on the exclusion law in this particular by the Pacific Mail Company is defeated.

The cases decided today were those of Fok Young Yo and Lee Gon Young vs. the United States. The opinion was delivered by Chief Justice Fuller. Justices Brewer and Peckham dissenting. Fok Young Yo case was considered at length, the other cases following it. The decision affects ninety eight Chinese detained on the Pacific Mail dock and means their immediate deportation.

Fok Young Yo and Lee Gon Young were on their way to Mexico and claimed the right under the treaty of 1894 to transit, one desiring to go by rail and the other merely to transship.

They were denied this right under the provision of the treaty giving the Treasury Department authority to make regulations for control in such matters. The Federal authorities discovered evidence in both cases, as in those of their detained countrymen, that the passengers did not intend to remain in Mexico. The prisoners sought release by habeas corpus proceedings, their petitions being denied by the District Court for the Northern District of California.

In his opinion the Chief Justice said, "Congressional action has placed the final determination of the right of admission of Chinese in executive officers without judicial intervention, and this has been for many years the recognized and declared policy of the country. The regulations to prevent the abuse of the privilege of transit have been and are intended to effectuate the same policy and prevent recourse to the courts by habeas corpus to determine the existence of such abuses. The record did not present a case of fraud or of action in contravention with the Constitution, and we think that upon the admission of fact the orders of the collector cannot be held to have been invalid."

Contrary to expectation, the Supreme Court did not specifically affirm nor deny the validity of the act of September 13, 1888, erroneously called the Scott act, which in certain provisions relates to the transit of Chinese. Reference is made by the Chief Justice to the act.

ADVICE TO YOUNG BASE-BALL PLAYERS

BY CONNIE MACK,

Manager of the Philadelphia American League Club.

Second Baseman Should Have Thorough Understanding with Shortstop.

One of the most important points in playing the second base is the position where to stand. In touching a runner from first on a throw from the catcher, the fielder should stand just inside of the line, say, two or three feet from the base. Should the base runner be one of the kind that makes it a practice of sliding or diving head first, it is advisable to play behind the line. In this case there would be little chance of the runner being hit by the throw from the catcher and could easily be touched by the second baseman.

In making this play he determines beforehand in each instance from the knowledge of the habits of the opposing players. While playing inside of the line the fielder is not only in as good a position to touch the runner, but is often able to help the catcher out on short throws, making the pick-up and thus accomplishing the put out, which otherwise he might fail to do.

The recent development of the science of place hits has rendered it advisable for the second baseman to play for the batter alone. With the runner on first he should sign to the short stop to cover the base. The understanding on this particular play between the second baseman and short stop is reached by having signals, which are usually given by the second baseman. It is as well that the catcher should know these signals so that he can make allowance for his throw, which is generally made to the side of the base that the player is coming from.

It will often be found good policy to adjust the plans that the player who covers second base on the throw should start out towards the field so as to create the impression that he intends fielding deep. The other player should play close to the base and just prior to the delivery of the ball by the pitcher the two fielders can make the change so as to complete the deception and keep the batters guessing as to what to expect next. The batter is always on the lookout as to who will cover the base, and the repeated change of this play should be made which will mislead the batter.

vice to part of section 5 of the act, relating to the powers of the Secretary of the Treasury to make or change transit regulations, and he notes that that act was based upon a treaty then pending between the United States and China. The Court then says, "As the treaty was never ratified it may be doubtful whether that section ever took effect."

The Court's decision that the Treasury Department has full power and final decision in transit cases is based on the treaty with China. Speaking of section 3 of the treaty, the Court says: "We regard this as explicitly recognizing existing regulations and as assenting to their continuance and to such modifications of them as might be found necessary to prevent abuse. It dealt with the subject specially and was operative without an act of Congress to carry it into effect."

Big Gold Strike at Silver Peak

Carson, May 2.—Word came to this city today of a remarkable gold strike in the Silver Peak mines, the property of the Blais of New Jersey, and over which a fortune has been spent in litigation. S. A. Knapp and Dr. Berry, both of Hawthorne, brought the news. They report that the company has had a force of fifteen men at work recently, under the direction of Samuel Wasson. In following a small stringer they came upon a treasure-house of gold nuggets. In one day more than $100,000 was taken out and the "pocket" had not yielded all of its wealth.

Lady Expires in a Dentist's Chair

Oakland, May 8.—While having her teeth extracted by Dentist G. L. Schmidt this afternoon in the latter's office at Eleventh and Broadway, the wife of Chilean Consul Juan A. Pereira was seized with spasms and in a few moments was dead. She had previously stated that her heart troubled her and the dentist declined to administer an anesthetic before operating upon her teeth, though she asked to have gas given her to ease the pain.

Boote May be Needed for Young Marquis

London, May 3.—The Marchioness of Headfort, formerly Miss Rosie Boote of the "Floradora" company, has given birth to a son. Both are doing well.

SEATTLE BEER.

The ever popular Rainier Beer is just as much a favorite as ever. It is on draught at the New Criterion Saloon as it was at the old. The longer it is used the better it is liked.

New Inspection Rules For Foreign Travelers

Washington, May 8.—Secretary Shaw today issued amended regulations governing the inspection of baggage of incoming passengers at the ports of the United States. The Secretary also has prepared a circular which will be distributed among passengers on all outgoing steamers, giving information as specific as possible as to the rates of duty on goods usually purchased abroad by tourists; what articles may be brought in free of duty, etc. Another circular issued today will be distributed at sea among incoming passengers containing forms of declarations and other information of which travelers are usually in more or less ignorance. Another circular is addressed to collectors and other officers of the customs giving them particular instructions as to the examination of baggage and the courteous treatment of passengers.

Among the more important modifications are the following: The free admission of any article that was taken abroad as baggage, provided it is brought back as baggage and accompanied by the owner.

The hundred dollars exemption may not be claimed on wearing apparel, articles of personal adornment, toilet articles and such other things as are commonly purchased by American tourists and are in the possession of the person bringing them, and not for sale.

The statute allows non-residents to bring all wearing apparel and other personal effects in actual use and appropriate to the purposes of the journey without regard to value. Heretofore the ruling has been that persons who had spent two years or longer abroad and had here a fixed place of abode for one year or more, were considered non-residents within the meaning of the customs law. Hereafter, if aliens or employees will be discharged should they accept a gratuity or tip under any circumstances while in the discharge of their duties.

Ladies desiring to have their baggage examined privately will be granted the privilege whenever the steamship company has provided a suitable place. Several of them have promised to make this provision.

THE SONG OF THE WIND.

In the rigging there's a drumming.
 Can't you hear the ropes a humming.
 And the eerie bosun's whistle
 through the rain?
 Can't you hear the voices crying
 Of the poor lost souls a-sailing?
 Who ever wander through the air in pain?

With a hurry around and a scurry away.
 (Ho! for the hurry of the wind!)
 With a leap and a yell,
 It sweeps over the tell:
 (Ho! for the sweep of the wind!)

It clamors over the town,
 And sweeps across the down;
 On the beach, wild moorland, dancing
 as it flies!
 Can't you hear the spirit calling,
 And the ghastly echoes falling,
 As the driving cloud wisps scud
 across the skies?

With a chuckle close by and a laugh afar!
 (Ho! for the laugh of the wind!)
 With a whistle of despair,
 And a sigh through the air!
 (Ho! for the whine of the wind!)

See the stately treetops bending,
 And the broken bough descending,
 And every little rabbit grey with fright!
 Can't you hear the forests wailing
 And the wind head's garment trailing
 Over trees and bush and gorse and grasses light?

With a frolic around and a rollic away!
 (Ho! for the frolic of the wind!)
 With the laughing shriek
 Of an elfin freak!
 (Ho! for the freak of the wind!)

Can't you hear the muttered rumbling,
 As the wind sprites come a-tumbling,
 A-swarmer and a-grumbling in their fall?
 Then the thunderous roll of battle,
 With its grim and ghostly rattle,
 Then the pibroch wail, the banshee
 and recall!
 With a bluster around, and a fluster
 away!
 (Ho! for the bluster of the wind!)
 With a deep bass note
 From its brazen throat!
 (Ho! for the voice of the wind!)
